

SHAPING THE DIGITAL FUTURE OF EUROPE

Debating the impact of the Digital Single Market – From Strategy to Reality

After spending decades bringing down barriers regarding trade in goods and services across borders, the European Union is now in the process of realising the Digital Single Market to boost the European online economy. We have now entered a world in which the digital is embedded in our daily lives. More concretely, in Europe we are in a phase of discovering the exponential value that digitalisation has, and could have, for the real world. With the implementation of the Digital Single Market Strategy, the EU is opening up digital opportunities for business and people, both on a European and national level. Will the DSM be effective for Europe to become a “world leader in the digital economy”, as the European Commission intends?
